Ragtime music is an important American art form and was America's first original, nationally popular music. It's roots are entrenched in the socio-economic plight of its nineteenth century creators. Its evolution is from many cultures, which include African, Latin, and European influences.

The TurpinTyme Ragsters will present the music, life, and career of Scott Joplin along with the top Ragtime composers from the Kansas City area.

Ragtime, like most popular musical trends, reflects a mingling of cultural events, technological advancements, entertainment and musical personalities at the turn of the 19th century.

The TurpinTyme Ragsters demonstrate how music is created in a group setting. The sounds they hear as "the ensemble" are impossible without the individual contributions of the musicians and their instruments. Students will also participate in "building a band" by learning to clap the basic tango rhythm that is the basis of most Ragtime compositions.
